NEWSLETTER No.97 DECEMBER 1982

Editor: M. J. Baker, 11 Kersey Close, Stowmarket, Suffolk, Tel: 66457

PRIMARY SCHOOL

By the time you will read this, school will be almost over for the year of 1982. It is a sobering thought that this will complete 108 years in the recorded history of the school, and a fascinating history it is judging by the old log books. We are given glimpses of the days when children were given paper to write on only on special occasions, days when the squire or vicar organised film shows and lectures in the village hall, and the time parents asked that the children could go home early because they were worried about their children's safety walking home through muddy lanes and over single plank bridges after it was dark.

So often, I feel, people can forget that the village school belongs to the whole village, not just to the children and their parents during the five years of their stay with us. Please feel free to join us in any of our activities, or come and have a look round after school hours. We will always be pleased to see you, and so that the history of our village is not forgotten, if you have any anecdotes or memories of school in Great Finborough, then we would love to share them with you.

From all of us, to all of you, a very Merry Christmas.

P.C. Twitchett, Headmaster.

PARISH COUNCIL

Points from the Council Meeting (26th November)

The Council has expressed its growing concern to the District Council over the situation at the gypsy caravan site in Combs Lane following the newspaper report that the land had been sold.

It was agreed to bring the attention of the District Council to the change of use of land situated next to the B1115 road opposite Home Farm which had been turned into a waste tip.

The Council decided to raise the sum of £2,240 by way of parish rates during 1983/84. A rate of 4.7p in the £ will be levied. Included in the sum is an allocation for the continuing Pettward Hall improvement work equivalent to a 2p in the £ rate.

Application was made for the provision of 6 footpath signposts available free from the County Council. These will be erected signposting paths which meet the metalled carriageway of roads in the parish.

The damaged play equipment on the Chestnuts play area is to be repaired.

Provision of telephone directories in adjacent areas

The National Association of Local Councils wrote to British Telecom following their decision to stop issuing free directories of neighbouring areas to subscribers. In reply, British Telecom set out their general policy on the matter and state that as one answer to the problem they sometimes print directory entries in more than one directory. Directories are also provided free of the basic charge to customers living within 10 miles of the boundary of the adjacent area; they can be collected free of charge from the Telephone Area Office, or delivered subject to a handling charge. British Telecom stress they are always prepared to be flexible and General Managers will interpret the rules sympathetically in the light of each customer's circumstances.

M.J.Paker, Clerk to the Council
